

Living and Dying with Dementia:

Let's talk about it!

A new study targeting CARE PARTNERS of persons living with dementia will soon be launched throughout Canada.

The study focuses on Care Partners' Attitudes toward Extending Medical Assistance in Dying to Patients with Dementia. It will investigate the beliefs underlying care partners' attitudes on this issue, the value they attach to proposed safeguards as well as assessing their burden and unmet support needs.

The study will be launched later this winter. At your request, you will be sent a survey questionnaire to fill out. To receive your questionnaire, please refer to the person whose name and contact information are listed at the bottom of this poster.

Your opinion on this delicate issue is crucial. Resulting findings will help determine how society should respond to patients with dementia or to their families asking for assistance in dying.

The study is led by Prof. GINA BRAVO, PhD, from the Université de Sherbrooke.
